

The business area Alligo within the Momentum group is considering moving TOOLS' Swedish logistics operations to Örebro

The board of Momentum Group has decided to proceed with a proposal from the business area Alligo that involves moving TOOLS Sweden's logistics operations to the current logistics center in Örebro. Negotiations with stakeholders will now begin. Other companies within the Momentum Group are not affected by a decision. A final decision can be made when negotiations with stakeholders have been concluded, whereby the financial effects of a possible decision can also be presented.

"We see big advantages and efficiency gains in concentrating this our storage capacity and distribution in one location in Sweden. The number of customers who buy online, in our integrated stores or via other sales processes is increasing all the time. Using one distribution channel rather than two would mean more efficient goods flows and better service to our customers," says Clein Ullenvik, Business Area Manager at Alligo.

The current logistics center in Örebro went live in 2012 and is a modern facility including a large Autostore facility, where capacity was expanded in 2015 and 2020. The entire site was expanded in 2020 and has scope to be further automated.
